

Lakeview redevelopment another step closer to reality

By CHRIS CLAY

Mississauga residents will be able to enjoy a new view of the city if everything goes according to plan with redevelopment of the Lakeview Generating Station lands.

Mayor Hazel McCallion and Ward 1 City Councillor Jim Tovey were joined by Ontario Power Generation (OPG) staff as well as Mississauga South MPP and Minister of Labour Charles Sousa at a press conference on Monday at Lakefront Promenade Park to announce the parties had signed a Memorandum of Understanding to work together to develop a shared vision for the nearly 100 hectares of land.

Tovey, who called the moment "incredibly emotional," said now that a memorandum has been signed he wants to move forward on the project. OPG will provide the City of Mississauga its studies and environmental reports on the lands and allow the City access to conduct its own technical studies.

Once the proper research has been conducted, the City can start formulating a master plan for the site; it will determine land use zoning and further define its redevelopment plans during the process.

Tovey hopes to see the plan completed within the next 18 months and construction to begin on parts of the redevelopment in two years.

"Today is the biggest day we've had so far in the history of this site because it commits the Province, OPG and the City toward developing a shared vision," said Tovey, who spearheaded a goal of developing the property when he headed the Lakeview Ratepayers' Association, prior to being elected.

Tovey was speaking from the site's kilometre-long pier that's been closed to the public for decades. He hopes to expedite access to it and would like a trail built to allow the public to take in what he describes as a stunning view of Mississauga as well as Toronto's downtown.

"It's inspirational and few people have had a chance to walk down and see the city (sky-line)," said Tovey. "I'm excited about this and we want people to get excited as we continue to build an amazing city."

As part of the process, the OPG will draft a recommendation for the future ownership of the lands.
